Time: 7:00 – 8:30pm
Venue: Manchester Business School Worldwide East Asia Centre,
Address: 6/F, Wilson House, 19-27 Wyndham Street, Central, HK

There is a growing consensus that finding innovative and sustainable ways to maintain a clean and efficient work force is of utmost importance. Gaining public trust is of great concern to government leaders. Similarly, in an increasingly competitive environment, business leaders should not lose sight of ethical practices whilst pushing for high productivity and cost saving.

Who’s ICAC?
The Independent Commission Against Corruption, or ICAC in short, was established in 1974. It comprises three functional departments, Operations, Corruption Prevention and Community Relations, which is an embodiment of the integrated approach to combat corruption through detection, prevention and education. Under this three-pronged strategy, the Community Relations Department (CRD) is responsible for educating the public against the evils of corruption and rallying public support in combating corruption through face-to-face contacts and the mass media.
